

In an effort to strengthen AIG's commitment and support the National Association of Chemical Distributors (NACD), AIG is pleased to announce a new partnership with Axon Underwriting Services (Axon). Under this new agreement, Axon will dedicate its experienced environmental underwriting resources to the administration of EAGLE and EAGLE Excess products for members of NACD exclusively. This new Program Administration agreement creates a specialized insurance team with the expertise needed to continue providing our brokers and clients with creative, competitive and comprehensive insurance solutions.

What is a Program Administrator?

A Program Administrator is an insurance agency that is granted underwriting authority by an insurance carrier and can administer insurance programs and negotiate contracts on its behalf.

What does this mean for the broker and client?

Renewal and new EAGLE and EAGLE Excess business for NACD members will be quoted, bound and serviced directly by Axon. As a dedicated extension of the AIG underwriting team, Axon will operate under AIG underwriting and rating guidelines and will be responsible for the development, distribution and underwriting of this business. Axon will also coordinate the Auto Liability coverage through AIG.

Why AXON?

Axon is an established Program Administrator that has over 150 years of combined environmental experience, which includes a staff comprising former insurance carrier executives, environmental engineers, senior environmental underwriters, environmental risk managers, and in-house legal professionals. Axon has the industry experience, high-efficiency platform, and multi-disciplinary underwriting knowledge needed to provide our brokers and clients best in class underwriting.

AIG's Commitment

AIG has been at the vanguard of the environmental insurance marketplace for over 30 years, with EAGLE being the first-to-market combined form offering General Liability and a full range of pollution coverages in a single, comprehensive form. The AIG commitment to EAGLE continues and the partnership with AXON provides a unique opportunity to build upon and strengthen our 20 year relationship with NACD.
